

The supply of space telecommunications systems and the integration of systems are not our sole vocation. We also have the objective to accompany you, to bring you our expertise before and after the sale and above all to guarantee you the maximum of services you need. In this way, and as an approved training organism, we are proud to propose you a wide range of trainings in our facilities, located in the green South West suburb of Paris or in your premises !

Our courses on satellite and terrestrial communications are developed for managers and technical staff. They include technological briefings for design of systems and practical skills training.

We regularly produce courses tailored for specific customers needs. Indeed, these trainings deal with very new technologies, specific data of military applications or sensitive commercial applications.
